COLLEGE AND GRANGE COOPERATION HELPFUL

Agriculture has been advanced rapidly by Farmers' Organization and State Colleges—Visitors Surprised at growth of O. A. C.

Cooperation of agricultural colleges and granges has proved an important factor in advancing the agricultural and community interests of the country, in the opinion of national grange officers and others who spoke at a dinner for members of the national grange who visited Oregon Agricultural College. Approximately 150 grangers were present, representing 26 states. Massachusetts led in numbers with 22.

"We are mighty proud of our Agricultural colleges," said Sherman J. Lowell of Fredonia, N. Y., master of the national grange and member of Grange No. 1, the first grange organized. "There is great team work between the colleges and the farmers."

Oliver Wilson of Peoria, Ill., former master of the national grange expressed his surprise at the "wonderful growth" of the institution in the 17 years since the grange last met in Oregon, when he visited the college. C. E. Spence of Oregon City, master of the Oregon grange, spoke of the valuable work the college is doing for the farmers and of the close cooperation between the institutions and the grange.

"Great progress has been made particularly in recent decades in the advancement of agriculture through application of scientific principles and improvement in conditions generally in the open country," said President W. J. Kerr in an address of welcome.

The work of the college in its various divisions was explained by President Kerr. He mentioned the fact that large numbers of prospective farmers are now studying subjects in the school of commerce, and ventured the assertion that this country has suffered more from lack of business methods than from lack of crop production.

Advertising pure bred livestock is effective during the winter months when farmers are giving more attention to local and trade papers. It is just as important to provide for the marketing of pure bred breeding stock as for the raising of them.—O. A. C. Experiment Station.

The short course in fruit and vegetable growing starts at O. A. C., Saturday, December 3. This is the first of eight courses listed.

KINGMAN KOLONY

Mrs. M. M. Groeling visited her son, Merritt, at Weiser last week. Miss Elsie Elliott came up from Ontario to spend the week end with the home folks.

The Walter Nichols family spent last week at Emmett, where they enjoyed Thanksgiving with the home folks.

Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Edwards and family made a trip to New Plymouth last Thursday, enjoying a Thanksgiving dinner with relatives. From there they went to Boise to attend a lecture by David Starr Jordan, on "The Plight of Europe."

Geo. Friarmenth of Parma, was a visitor at the M. L. Judd home Sunday.

Dinner guests of the R. R. Overstreet and M. L. Judd families on Thanksgiving day were, Mr. and Mrs. T. Morgan and family and Miss Gladys Johnson of the Kolony, and Mrs. Reynolds and Miss Eliza Jones of Nyssa. Miss Jones was a pupil of Mrs. Judd at Jordan Valley.

A Thanksgiving party at the A. G. Kingman home included the following guests: Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Martin, and Mrs. Martin's mother, Mrs. Nebelsick, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Otis, and Misses Bernice and Janeth Martin.

C. C. Colton is improving his ranch in the Kolony, and also building a new dairy barn.

F. L. Johnson of Parma, who, in company with Maurice Judd and Robert Overstreet will plant fifty acres of early potatoes the coming season in the Kolony, was a business visitor here last Saturday.

ESTRAYS

Came to my place 2 miles west of Fair Grounds on Malheur river, one Holstein steer and one red heifer. Holstein has L S on left rib, silt on right ear and under slope on left, both have tag No. 10 on ear. Owner may have same by paying cost of advertisement and cost of keep. Robert Leroy.

Poultry Need Dry Straw

Poultrymen should not attempt to economize on straw litter at this time of year. With such unusual wet weather litter will absorb the dampness and get soggy quickly. It is a good plan to stir the straw at night, which practice tends to keep the birds active. Clean the litter out each week if necessary as clean dry straw will promote exercise that helps to fill the egg basket. It doesn't take many eggs at present prices to pay for a bale of straw.—O. A. C. Experiment Station.

New Clover Recommended

The Ladino clover, a giant growing type of white little Dutch clover, has made satisfactory growth in cooperative forage trials at the experiment station. It is perennial in habit and grows much more rankly than the ordinary white clover, making it a useful plant for permanent pastures where there is a good supply of moisture. It is not rank growing enough to justify its culture for hay, but is a good pasture crop and in some irrigated sections it may be successfully produced for seed purposes.—O. A. C. Experiment Station.

Oregon Honey Share Low

Oregon produces but 2 per cent of the country's honey crop, while its big neighbor to the south, California, turns out about 15 per cent. California has increased its production 500 per cent in the last 20 years, and its fruit output by a like margin. Oregon areas growing seed commercially are now dependent upon bees. A short course in beekeeping, January 2-February 25, at the O. A. C. will deal with wintering, spring management, honey plants, equipment, swarm control, disease and inspection, queen raising, and comb and extracted honey production. It will help those wanting to get into the bee business as well as those now in it.

Grapes and grape varieties and cultural methods will be given special attention at the short course Dec. 3 to 17. Such features of viticulture as pertain to the growing, harvesting and marketing of both American and European types of grapes, soils, locations, pruning, training, harvesting, grading, packing and storage will be considered. The two weeks' short course in fruit and vegetable growing will also include work on spraying, insect and disease control, pruning, thinning varieties of fruit and vegetables suitable for Oregon, nut culture, small fruit growing, plant propagation, landscape gardening.
